MESSAGE:

Thank you very much, Governor Palin for proposing to use some of the anticipated budget surplus for alternative energy.

The U. S. military has surplus C130 cargo aircraft, perhaps Gov. Palin can find find a way to get the private sector to access those aircraft to transport say, 300 lb propane cylinders to rural Alaska villages.

Another option might be to work with native cooperations who are major landowners and have investment capital, to develope a single rail high speed elevated train system like in Europe, to transport fuel sources to the Bush and backhaul ore from mines to processing facilites. This would solve two problems, cheaper energy to the Bush, and would allow mining in environmently sensitive areas.

Another option might be to work with Boeing aircraft, who is looking for financial backing to develope a lighter than air , heavy lift craft,

Either of those options would greatly help Alaska solve it's problems in an environmently freindly way.

Keep up the great job you are doing Governor, I am glad I supported you in your bid for Governor!

Gov. Palin,

I just wanted to send a quick email to show my support of your plan for $2.6 billion of the forecasted budget surplus to go towards State's education system. It is definately a step in the right direction.

With the amount of money we receive from Oil (and in the future - Natural Gas) there should be no reason why we shouldn't have the best school system in all 50 States.

Sincerely,

Hi Sarah,

I know you are busy, but...............wanted to forward on an invitation sent to the commissioners office. We would enjoy a visit from you, and I am sure the staff would appreciate a quick visit as well- as Ag has had a lot of negative publicity of late, and nothing like the smiling face of the Governor to lift everyone's spirits! :) If you can spare a few minutes a visit to the main office would be greatly appreciated as well.

Thanks for the Christmas card - it is amazing how big all your kids have gotten. Ayslan turned 17 a few days ago - I can not believe how old we have gotten!

Hope you have a good day and CONGRATULATIONS on your most recent successes!!!

I think you're doing a fantastic job.

I would, however, like to suggest that a portion of 'The Billions' be spent to promote tourisim across the highways to and within Alaska. Tourism is one of our main industries and is hurting very badly of late. It seems there is a bit of apathy when it comes to touting our gloriously beautiful and awe inspiring state to other states and countries. Some well made and well placed advertising on TV and in the lower 48 would give a great many rural Alaskan businesses a much needed shot in the arm.

Spending on education is well and good, but it won't keep our children here if our industries and businesses fail.

Thank you Sarah and keep up the good work!

MESSAGE:

Dear Ms. Palin,

Tragedy struck our family this past Wednesday evening as what appears to be a large wolf took our pet dog from Artillary Road near Eagle River on Fort Richardson. The next morning we tracked the animal(s) and found a few remains about a mile from the core of Eagle River. This attack was about 30 feet from my wife.

We really wanted our loss to become others warning as to this danger that is so close. Several calls were made to the Anchorage and Fort Richardson ADFG offices in the early morning and again in the afternoon, but as of Thursday evening none of them have been returned. The overriding concern is the question of how important is the public safety to these people? One of the clerks responded that wolf attacks on dogs are fairly common! I don't recall any in the Municipality of Anchorage in the past 10 years, so are there facts regarding other attacks in the MOA that are not being given to the public? There are many children and other dogs in our community that are the same size as our 36 pound dog.

We ask you to have someone check with ADFG to see if this incident is "common" around the MOA, and why no one has responded to our messages. The public deserves to know the frequency and location of these types of incidents so they can avoid them. This should have been actively investigated to determine the type, number, and health of the attacking animal before precious evidence is lost.

Thank you for the opportunity to address my concerns. I hope and pray for the safety of our people, and their pets.

Respectfully, Kim Hubert

Subject: Summary/Senator Stevens meeting - PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL -

ATTORNEY/CLIENT PRIVILEGE

PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL - ATTORNEY/CLIENT PRIVILEGE

We met with Senator Stevens this morning and discussed a number of items:

* Gas Pipeline - Senator Stevens would like a briefing after the preliminary analysis of the pipeline applications has been completed. He suggested a joint briefing of the entire congressional delegation shortly after the first of the year.

In the interim, the Senator doesn't intend to comment on the pipeline or AGIA and doesn't think that his colleagues in the delegation will do so either. He doesn't believe that the Bush administration will take sides between the producers and pipeline companies. His feeling is that Congress and the Bush administration want a viable pipeline project and want to know that steps are being taken in this direction.

He did say, as Senator Murkowski told us earlier in the week, that serious talk about exporting North Slope gas to the Pacific Rim would probably lead to legislation prohibiting this possibility.

We expressed concern that certain provisions of the Senate's Climate Change bill could adversely impact the gas pipeline. His staff has identified the same problem and is working to resolve it.

* Amicus Brief/Exxon-Valdez - the Senator is experimenting with an amicus brief of his own that would convey his personal observations about what transpired in the immediate aftermath of the Exxon/Valdez disaster. He doesn't see this as incompatible with possibly joining the state's brief and said that he would be talking further with Senator Murkowski and Congressman Young about how to proceed. He understands the relevant deadlines and will get back to us after these discussions.

Per the request I received from Craig Tillery, I talked to the Senator about helping to ensure that the Bush administration does not support Exxon's position. He doubted that there would be White House pressure but directed his staff to make some inquiries. Yesterday, I spoke with the Vice President's office to express our request that the administration either join with us or stay neutral.

* ESA/Polar Bears/Belugas - We exchanged information about what the state has been doing and what he has been doing. Regarding belugas, I had the feeling that he has been talking with Bill Hogarth of NMFS, but I didn't press him on the content of these discussions. Concerning polar bears, he believes that the state needs to do more in the public relations arena - for example, inviting the media to see what is happening on the North Slope. He is very concerned that a listing could preclude not only oil and gas activity but even subsistence use.

Much of what he said is already incorporated into the Governor's draft op-ed piece on climate change and polar bears. He suggested that the op-ed be given some national distribution.

* Climate Change/Village Relocation -He envisions a regime where the state would do the planning; the Denali Commission would coordinate and otherwise assist in execution; and various federal agencies would provide funding through the Commission or in coordination with it. We talked about having a centralized NEPA process involving all relevant agencies. We also discussed the pros and cons of retaining the Center for Climate Strategies to assist the Climate Change Sub-cabinet. (This will be a topic at the next meeting of the Sub-cabinet.)

* Mining and Wetlands - We talked about the negative implications for Alaska of pending mining and wetlands legislation. I told the Senator about the state's analysis of both bills and our work this week in DC with the Department of Law. The Senator reiterated his concern about the Pebble project and said that it could give Alaska mining a bad name.

These are the high points. If you have any questions or comments, please let me know.

Please note that my email address has changed. My new email address is <mailto:jwkatz@alaskadc.org> jwkatz@alaskadc.org. Thank you .

What was Harris thinking?!?! How inappropriate! It's a shame some think that we still don't need to work hard for Alaska and for Alaskans to trust us. The economy and resource development are important too, but upholding the highest ethical standards in state government is just as substantive an issue.

Kelly said the governor expects ethics-in-government reform to resurface this year as there's a need to continue to restore Alaskans' faith in their government.

"It seems silly to try and pretend as if it doesn't have a huge affect on how we do business as a state. To think that we aren't going to do something about it legislatively is probably not realistic," Kelly said.

Harris said the sweeping ethics reforms achieved this session were enough, and that more could discourage people from becoming lawmakers.

"What more is there to address that wasn't addressed already?" Harris said. "I don't know what the hell they've been smoking if they want to do more ethics reform. I want to get down to some substantive issues to deal with the economy."

There were no bids received. A press release is being drafted now. They are working on plan B, which could entail contracting through the industry rep and auctioning off about $6million in equipment.

There is a producer severance that will be on the table for discussion at tonight's board meeting. The severance would only be paid out of the proceeds of a sale and after all creditors have been satisfied. It is along the lines of the severance to employees. Kristan and the Board are strongly recommending it. The Corporation's attorney supports it. Privileged or Personal Material Redacted
